

Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Sunday 07 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:

Snow showers in east. Dry, bright in west. Cold everywhere.

Today:

It will be a much brighter day with some sunshine, best in the west. There will be scattered snow showers in the east with a few feeding through to some western areas. Bitterly cold easterly winds.

Tonight:

Clear periods and further snow showers over eastern Scotland with the odd one getting across to the west. A cold night with a widespread sharp frost and risk of ice.

Monday:

Sunny intervals and scattered snow showers. The showers most frequent over eastern Scotland with a few heavier showers. Sunnier skies in the west and mostly dry. Cold easterly winds.

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:

Staying cold with further snow showers for eastern Scotland. Many western areas will remain dry with sunny spells and just the odd light snow shower. Lighter easterly winds.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.